Charter of ethics of publication

The Algerian Journal of Human and Social Sciences publishes original and referenced scientific articles, with the aim of offering high quality to its readers by adhering to the principles of the publishing ethics charter.

As part of the guarantee of the good quality of the scientific articles and original research published in the journal, which must meet the standards of scientific research and the rules of publication, the collaborators (editorial board- editor-in-chief, associate editors, reviewers, members of the editorial secretariat- authors...) of the journal must adhere to the principles of the journal's charter of ethics and professional conduct, which must be accepted by all:

1- Obligations of the editorial board:

- The scientific article is published after having been read by the editor-in-chief and the associate editors, each according to his specialty, and is submitted for anonymous evaluation by two reviewers (the identity of the author of the article should not be known by the reviewers). In the event of a conflict between the two evaluations, the article is entrusted to a third reviewer, whose evaluation is decisive.
- The editorial board of the journal is required to preserve the information and rights of authors before agreeing to publish an article (research) in the journal, and to keep the scientific material addressed to it and not to disclose it or leave it within the reach of others until it is published.
- The editorial board undertakes to show impartiality, objectivity and confidentiality in the treatment of articles sent to it; it relies only on scientific criteria in the evaluation of articles and chooses the reviewers to assess them according to their specializations.
- The editorial board is required to inform the authors of all developments related to their articles, within a reasonable time.
- If an article is accepted for publication, the editorial board is required to provide the author with a certificate of promise to publish the article in future issues of the journal, or a certificate of publication from the article, provided that a request is sent to the journal's email: revue.ajhss@univ-constantine3.dz

- The editorial board is required to publish the articles accepted in the peer-reviewed journal, free of charge, every semester on the Algerian scientific journal platform, which allows free access and downloading of articles.

2- Obligations of the authors :

- The author (s) should not submit the same article (research) to more than one journal, as this impedes the ethics of the publication.
- The author (s) must prove the authenticity of his work (their work) and any quotation from others must be properly referenced. The journal reserves the right to use the plagiarism detection program for submitted articles.
- The author (s) must submit an original article (research) that has not been previously published in another journal, and present it in a scientifically coherent form and conforms to the specifications of the articles referenced, whether in terms of language, form or content, depending on the criteria for publication in the journal.
- The author (s) is (are) solely responsible for the opinions expressed in his (their) article, and for the validity and authenticity of the scientific material submitted for publication.
- The author (s) must make the required corrections and adjustments.

3- Obligations of the reviewers :

- Reviewers, if they agree to review the article, are required to submit their reports within a period not exceeding one month.
- Reviewers must show that their reviews of the articles (research) were made on the basis of an objective reading supported by convincing evidence and arguments that are unbiased and appealing to no personal point of view, sectarian or racist.
- Reviewers should ensure the accuracy of the bibliographic references cited in the article and inform the editor-in-chief of anything that may raise doubts about the credibility of the article because it is similar to other work.
- Reviewers should not accept the evaluation of an article (a research) if it is outside the scope of their skills and readings, and they should notify the editor-in-chief within the allotted time.
- Reviewers are required to keep all information in the article confidential.
- The reviewers help the editor-in-chief and the editorial board to make the publication decision, and help the author (s) to improve and correct their article (s), respecting rules and standards of review.
