Editorial Policy and Ethical Code:

1. Submissions will be reviewed by a scientific committee and undergo double-blind peer review. They must adhere to the following typographical standards: Presentation Guidelines.
2. Submitted articles must be original research, not previously published in any other journal or medium; they must not have been published in another language or simultaneously submitted to another journal or medium. The journal uses a plagiarism detection system.
3. If authors wish to reproduce their article in other publications or for any other purpose and by any means, they must obtain written permission from the Editorial Board.
4. The author retains ownership rights over their article, as outlined in the Intellectual Property Code: "The author of a work of the mind enjoys, by the sole fact of its creation, an exclusive and enforceable property right. This right includes intellectual, moral, and economic attributes."
5. The author is free to deposit their article in any institutional or other archiving system.
6. Publication in HISPANICAL is free of charge for authors.

Submission Procedure:

Articles submitted must be original research, not previously published in any other journal or medium, and must not have been published in any other language or submitted to any other journal or medium.

For special issue files, the file editor proposes collaborators. A call for special contributions is also published on the ASJP page of HISPANICAL. The issue editor accepts or rejects these proposals.

All articles undergo double-blind peer review by two reviewers proposed by the issue editor.

The editorial board ensures the neutrality and expertise of reviewers and reserves the right to reject an article that does not meet the journal's scientific standards: high scientific quality, high editorial and linguistic quality, rich bibliography, and the use of egalitarian and non-discriminatory language.

The Editorial Board evaluates proposals for acceptance or rejection and appoints reviewers for accepted submissions in the sections: Papers, Varia, and Proceedings.

Submission of Contributions:

In .MS-Word format

The journal is committed to quality and seeks original contributions. Authors should highlight unexplored sources or attempt to shed new light on the subject. The journal is also interested in studies or state-of-the-art syntheses.

Texts submitted to the Varia/Documents/Reviews sections or the Call for Papers are subject to anonymous double review (the author does not know the reviewers' identity, and the reviewers do not know the author's name).

- A favorable opinion may include suggestions that could lead the author to modify the text.
- Rejection of publication is subject to a reasoned opinion communicated to the author.
- The evaluation period varies depending on the nature and duration of the study.
