Publication Ethics

The Journal of Studies in Educational Sciences publishes original and peer-reviewed scientific articles with the aim of ensuring high-quality content for its readers by adhering to the principles of the Code of Publication Ethics and preventing unethical practices.

This ethical code aligns with the guidelines of the Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE) and serves as a reference for authors, researchers, and all stakeholders involved in the publication process, including reviewers, editorial advisors, and publishers. The journal seeks to establish unified standards of conduct and ensures that all parties accept and uphold the rules of the ethical code. Accordingly, the journal is fully committed to implementing these standards while assuming responsibility and fulfilling the respective duties assigned to each party.

Publisher's Responsibilities

Publication Decision:

The editor-in-chief is responsible for making decisions regarding the publication of submitted manuscripts. This decision must consider copyright laws and proper citation of previous works to preserve the rights of others. Decisions must comply with the journal's editorial policies and legal requirements, particularly concerning libel, copyright infringement, and plagiarism. The editor-in-chief may consult with editorial board members or reviewers in the decision-making process.

Integrity:

The editor-in-chief ensures that all submitted manuscripts are evaluated based on their content, regardless of the author's gender, ethnicity, religious beliefs, citizenship, or political affiliation.

Confidentiality:

All information regarding submitted manuscripts must remain strictly confidential and must be protected by all individuals with access to it, such as the editor-in-chief, editorial board members, and others involved in the publishing process, as dictated by the peer review system.

Explicit Consent:

Unpublished research results from submitted manuscripts may not be used or disclosed without the express written consent of the author.

Reviewer's Responsibilities

Contribution to Editorial Decisions:

Reviewers assist the editor-in-chief and editorial board in making publication decisions and help authors improve and refine their manuscripts.

Timeliness:

Reviewers must conduct evaluations promptly and within the specified deadlines. If a reviewer cannot complete a review due to time constraints or if the manuscript falls outside their expertise, they must notify the editor-in-chief accordingly.

Confidentiality:

All information contained in manuscripts under review must be treated as confidential and may not be disclosed or discussed with anyone except those authorized by the editor-in-chief.

Objectivity:

Reviews must be conducted objectively, and reviewers should support their evaluations with clear evidence and arguments. Personal opinions, biases, or discriminatory remarks based on race, religion, or political views must be avoided.

Acknowledgment of Sources:

Reviewers should identify relevant published works that are not cited by the author. Any substantial similarity or overlap between the manuscript under review and other published works must be reported to the editor-in-chief.

Conflict of Interest:

Reviewers must refrain from reviewing manuscripts in which they have conflicts of interest resulting from competitive, collaborative, or other relationships with any of the authors or affiliated institutions.

Author's Responsibilities

Reporting Standards:

Authors must present original research and provide accurate and objective results, formatted according to scientific conventions and in line with the journal's language, structure, and content requirements. Data must be reported clearly and precisely, with proper referencing and full respect for the rights of others. Authors must avoid presenting sensitive, unethical, or discriminatory content, and must not include false or misleading information or translated work without proper citation.

ISSN:2543-3741 / EISSN: 2600-6529 / Legal Deposit:1160-2016

Originality and Plagiarism:

Authors must ensure the originality of their work. Any use of others' words, ideas, or data must be properly cited. The Journal of Studies in Educational Sciences reserves the right to use plagiarism detection software to evaluate all submitted manuscripts.

Multiple Submissions:

Authors must not submit the same manuscript to more than one journal or conference simultaneously. Such behavior is considered unethical and unacceptable.

Data Access and Retention:

Authors should retain raw data related to their research and provide access to it upon request from the editorial board or reviewers.

Disclosure:

Authors must disclose any financial or other conflicts of interest that may affect the interpretation of their research. Sources of financial support must be clearly stated.

Authorship of the Paper:

Authorship should be limited to individuals who have made a significant contribution to the conception, design, execution, or interpretation of the research. The corresponding author must ensure that all co-authors have reviewed and approved the final version of the manuscript and agreed to its submission for publication. No person who did not contribute substantially should be listed as an author.

Citations and References:

Authors must properly cite all sources used in their research. All references—including books, articles, websites, and other scholarly works—must be listed in the reference section and cited appropriately in the text.

Error Reporting:

If authors discover a significant error or inaccuracy in their published work, they are obligated to promptly notify the editor-in-chief or publisher and cooperate to correct or retract the paper as needed.
