Editor-in-Chief
PROF HAFSI ABBAS

Opening speech by

This issue of the Journal of Science and Knowledge Horizons presents a selection of peer-reviewed studies reflecting the journal's multidisciplinary scope and international orientation. The contributions address contemporary challenges related to digital transformation, education, psychology, law, language, literature, media, and Islamic studies, combining theoretical perspectives with empirical and analytical approaches.

Together, the articles highlight the growing interaction between technological change, social dynamics, legal frameworks, and human values, while offering comparative insights from diverse academic and cultural contexts. This issue reaffirms the journal's commitment to scientific rigor, intellectual diversity, and the advancement of knowledge across disciplines.
